"We've taken great efforts to communicate this move with our producer base," said Ryan O'Connor, Arrowhead's chief marketing officer. "With our IT team having to move our entire data center, we want to make sure our customers are aware of our systems' down-time."

All systems throughout the company, including E-mail and telephone and fax lines, will be operational by Monday, July 30.

The decision to move into a new building was inevitable as the various personal lines programs continue to grow. "The tremendous growth of our business over the last few years has given Arrowhead the opportunity to move into a state of the art facility," said Jerry Batcheller, Senior Vice President of Operations. "This allows us further capacity to grow our program business for years to come."
